Mandatory questions on sports in school admission forms, saving playgrounds from encroachment, attaching a sports expert to MLAs and MPs, and creation of a model village were some of the prominent proposals passed unanimously by a host of India's past and present athletes at the inaugural National Sports Assembly here on Saturday.

Organised by Institute of Management Technology (IMT), Chaziabad, in association with the NGO Sports: A Way of Life, the assembly elected hockey Olympians Ashok Kumar and Zafar Iqbal as its first head and deputy. The deliberations also involved past masters such as Surinder Khanna (cricket), Pritam Ranjan (hockey), Gopal Saini (athletics) as well as active athletes such as Srinivas Sagade (hockey), Naveen Kumar (handball), and Akshay Chaudhary (handball).
The recommendations, aimed to foster a sports culture, were floated by Kanishka Pandey, who heads the sports research centre at IMT besides being the founder-president of Sports: A Way of Life.

"India did very well at the Tokyo Olympics but we can't be satisfied just yet. We need to reach out to parents to sensitise them about the benefits of sports. A lot of parents still don't see much use in letting their children play without realising that sports not only prepares children physically, but also imparts them the essential mental strength to take failures and rejections in their stride," said Pandey while seeking compulsorily inclusion of questions on sport in the nursery admission process.

"It is imperative to take sports to each household. For that, parents need to be educated. There is a need to include one or two basic questions on sports, such as ‘Which sport is your child interested in?’ in nursery forms just to start conversations around sports at homes," said Pandey.

Rachana Govil, former director of SAI Lucknow campus, seconded the move and called for wider pedagogical reforms. "I feel our pre-school or elementary books should include sports in some way or the other," said Govil, who represented India in athletics and later in shooting. One of the ways to do that would be identifying 10-12 letters through sports-related terminology while teaching the alphabet, she said. That will help "children will start getting attuned to sports at a subconscious level."

"Also, I think that students who excel at sports meets in schools should be awarded extra marks to boost his/her morale. That will also set an example for other kids to follow," said Govil.

Saini, former national record holder in 3000 metre steeplechase, suggested that chapters on the life and struggles of former athletes should be made part of school curriculum and two-time hockey Olympian Muftaba said politicians should be kept out of district and state sports associations.

"The practice of politicians governing sports bodies has been going on for ages and it is high time such important positions are given to domain experts," said Muftaba.

Former volleyball player Mishra raised the issue of lack of tangible incentives for poor families to get their children into sport and Siwach, who was recently conferred with a Dronacharya award, urged former athletes to "go beyond paperwork and work on the ground."

The proposals will be sent to central and state governments.

"I think this assembly is an important first step in creating a sports culture in the country. I am hopeful that our proposals will be received well and acted upon," said Kumar, India's 1975 World Cup hero.

NEW DELHI: Sports personalities on Saturday discussed several proposals during India's first National Sports Assembly with an aim to revolutionise sports in the country.

Organised by IMT Ghaziabad in association with NGO Sports: A Way of Life, the assembly concluded that there is a need to change the way sports is being looked at today.

The proposals suggested the steps required to transform sports from grassroots level -- from kindergarten to senior level.

Speaking at the assembly, hockey Olympian Ashok Dhyan Chand said, "We cannot even think of either the welfare of sports or of the sportspersons.

"So far we have not been able to register huge success at the Olympic stage as we have been lagging behind in the medal tally despite a promising potential in several Olympic-related games. We have a huge population and if sincere efforts are being made, then we deserve better than whatever we have been able to achieve."

It was agreed in the assembly that a formal request be made to government agencies to develop at least one Model Sports Village in each state.

One more proposal was that the government should get the sports ground free from the clutches of land mafia so that children can play there.

"Time is ripe and it is the right time when sports infrastructure will be improved in the country if the government really wishes to see growth in soft power in terms of our sportspersons playing some active role in civil society," said former India hockey player Zafar Iqbal.

The assembly will be organised thrice a year.

National Sports Assembly discusses proposals to revolutionise sports

The event was attended by several key sports personalities, who have represented India in various sports at different levels.

India's first National Sports Assembly took place here on Saturday to discuss several proposals that would revolutionise sports in the country. The event was attended by several key sports personalities, who have represented India in various sports at different levels.

The assembly, organised by IMT Ghaziabad in association with NGO Sports: A Way of life, mooted that there is a need to change the way we look at sports today. The proposals suggested the steps, which are required to visualise and transform the sports from grassroots level i.e from kindergarten to senior level.

Speaking at the assembly, hockey Olympian Ashok Dhyan Chand gave a call for developing sports culture in the country.

“We cannot even think of either the welfare of sports or of the sportspersons. So far we have not been able to register huge success at the Olympic stage as we have been lagging behind in the medal tally despite a promising potential in several Olympic-related games. We have a huge population and if sincere efforts are being made, then we deserve better than whatever we have been able to achieve,” he said.
The assembly after due deliberations and discussion agreed that a formal request be made to government agencies to develop at least one Model Sports Village in each state and this centre should work as a magnet and around it all sorts of sports-related developments be initiated in adjoining districts and villages.

Another proposal was that the government should get the sports ground made free from the clutches of land mafias so that kids can play there.

"Time is ripe and it is the right time when sports infrastructure will be improved in the country if the government really wishes to see growth in soft power in terms of our sportspersons playing some active role in civil society," said former India hockey player Zafar Iqbal.

Meanwhile, Dr. Kanishka Pandey, Head Sports Research Centre, I M T Ghaziabad, said that the sports assembly was on the lines of Indian Parliamentary sessions, where every member discusses various government proposals.

"All the members of the 1st National Sports Assembly, today discussed each of the proposals mooted after a research, and their suggestions were incorporated and all the proposals passed here will be documented and will be forwarded to the central and state governments, the key stakeholders assigned to frame sports policies," said Pandey in a release.

"We look forward to the suggestions of this assembly finding due considerations at the policy framers level," he added.

The assembly also mentioned that the school admission criteria should also include consideration of sports knowledge, as only then the parent will change their perception about sports.

Another important proposal that found majority support was there should be a mandatory provision to include at least one sports advisor to each parliamentarian and legislator as they will help in that department to include sports activity under their area of operation.

The IMT National Sports Assembly will be organised thrice a year.

Rachna Govil, Md Jalaluddin Rizvi, Gopal Saini, Suresh Mishra, Arvind Chhavara, Mahavir Singh, Rajkumar Bainsala, Vineet Kumar, Danish Muftaba, Shiv Singh, Sandeep Gupta, Naveen Kumar Poonia, Preetam Thakral, Sandeep Singh Man, Surendra Khanna, Akram Shah, Nicky Balaji, Ashok Dhawan, and Akshay Chaudhary were also present in the assembly.

Ashok Dhyan Chand says suffering depression is 'natural' in sports

By Priya Nagi

New Delhi, Dec 18 (UNI) In every player’s career there comes a time when they go through depression. The former hockey player Ashok Kumar, son of legendary Dhyan Chand, on Saturday said “depression is a natural thing” but it can be overcome with commitment to the game and by working hard for the next challenge.

The 71-year-old opened about the days when he too suffered from depression, saying that he used to cry when India missed gold medal at the 1973 World Cup.

India lost to the Netherlands in the shoot out (2-4) after the game was deadlocked at 2-2.

“My life’s biggest drawback was 1973 World Cup which we had to win. Unfortunately, after two-goal lead it was drawn. In extra time too it was at equal level but suddenly in death minutes we got a penalty stroke but missed it and eventually we lost that (in penalties by 2-4).

“After that match, apart from crying we could do nothing. Whenever I used to recall it, I used to cry that we missed gold medal,” Ashok told UNI on the sidelines of National Sports Assembly event here at the Indian Habitat Centre.

“It took so many evenings to get over it.

“Things like ‘had we done that we would have netted one goal; had I struck a penalty stroke it would have been a goal; when I gave the pass had the player played a reverse shot it would have been a goal – all these things crossed my mind.

“But we need to get over it with our hard work for next challenge. And we did that and got over it."

Today, youngsters suffer from depression and ultimately end their life after facing setbacks.

In last four months, four state-level shooters Khushbeerat Kaur Sandhu, Hunardeep Singh Sohal, Namandeep Singh Brar and Konica Lasyak died by suicide.

Olympian Ashok, while expressing grief over the untimely demise of young minds, said, “Athletes go through depression when they are not selected or when they lose.

“Even when we used to lose, we used to be upset and say things like ‘what is the use of playing’. So yes, depression comes in.

“Depression is a natural thing. It’s god’s blessing that we laugh and that we suffer from depression. When we feel bad or when something is taken from us, we feel depressed. Sports is also part of life but it helps us to overcome depression with discipline.

“If we don’t win today maybe we will win tomorrow,” he said.

Giving a recent example, he added: “At this Tokyo Olympics, so many kids from so many states worked hard to reach there be it swimmers, judo players, or from any other field.

“And when they lost in the first round how they broke into tears is the time when their commitment to the game should help them move on to next challenge. They should hope for tomorrow.”
When asked about whether youngsters are guided properly or not, Ashok said kids today are unable to figure out the right path which would lead them to their goals.

He added that people in position should make paths for youngsters.

"I've been associated with the game for so many years. I've interacted with youngsters too. In those conversations, I realised our youth are not guided in the right direction.

"They are unable to figure out the right path and where to play and display their talent.

"We have to make these paths clearer for them and give them wings to fly."

"I believe government is doing so much but at basic level.

"At the meet today we discussed how to bring kids into the fold, those who are already part of it need resources, and how to monitor those who have access to resources," he added.

Talking about India's performance at the concluded Junior Men's World Cup, the former player said India lacked spirit, right direction and appreciation within the team.

"Had these weaknesses been not there, we would have won it (tournament).

"Our weakness got exposed against France when we lost to them twice. I regret that happened.

"Winning and losing is part of the game but losing twice when we were already tested in the first game that was upsetting.

"Our team lacked the right direction and appreciation which was there in the senior team at the Olympics.

"That was the missing piece of the jigsaw in the junior team.

"When a player plays, automatically there is an urge to do something which you can call spirit that was lacking in the junior team.

"Team wasn't bad but yes they were technically weak. The placements and instructions are done during the match but we lacked in that too."

India senior team is currently competing at the Asian Champions Trophy in Dhaka. The team is sitting at the top of the table with seven points from three matches.

Ashok, however, feels he can't see depth in the team which was there during the Tokyo Olympics 2020.

"I can't see that depth in the team which should be there especially after playing Olympics Games.

"That class is missing. No doubt we are winning.

"We got our first goal through only one penalty corner and that too we were awarded. We were good against Pakistan.

"India will hopefully win it. In Asia, it is important for us to dominate because if we have won (bronze) at Olympics then we should have our supremacy in Asia. And we have that opportunity in the coming matches."

Develop players at grassroots level: Zafar Iqbal

By Priya Nagi

New Delhi, Dec 18 (UNI) Legendary hockey player Zafar Iqbal on Saturday rued the fact that India couldn't click as a team as he stressed on the need to "develop more players at grassroots level" and become a stronger side at the international arena. Iqbal counted the Junior Men's team's shortcomings.

"I don't think I've seen anybody (at the Junior Men's World Cup) who can go into the senior team. It shows that although you have talented players but still you need a lot of practice, coordination and mental toughness in order to become part of the senior side."

Iqbal, a member of the 1980 Olympics gold medal winning India team, said that the players who featured at the just concluded Junior Men's World Cup, need a lot of practice, coordination and mental toughness in order to become part of the senior side.

The 65-year-old gave an example of Harmanpreet Singh, who was part of the 2016 Junior Men's World Cup, adding that the defender performed well at junior level and only then he became part of the senior team. Harmanpreet was named Player of the Year at the FIH annual awards for the year 2020-21.

"You have to develop more players at the grassroots level so that we should have a number of talented players at that (international) level. Players like Harmanpreet Singh played the 2016 Junior World Cup and won it. Only then he became part of the senior team."

When asked about India's performance at the 2021 Junior Men's World Cup, Iqbal had no qualms in accepting the national side's weaknesses.

He said the team looked in defence, coordination, conversion, field goal and conversion through penalty corner.

"India couldn't click as a team. If you compare with other teams like Argentina or Germany or even Australia they had a better side and they played better.

"Though you may be playing better prior (to the competition) but if you lose performance during the competition then you should be loser. They were lacking coordination among themselves, penetration was not very good.

"Even the short corner conversion was not up to the mark though we got a number of short corners.

"If you don't have all such things then you will end up losing. (Obviously) it depends on talent. Maybe people would say we lost because of the pandemic but that was the same for other teams as well. You can't make excuses."

India progressed to the semifinals but lost to France, who had beaten the men in blue in the opening fixture as well. Iqbal rued that losing to France exposed India's weaknesses.

"Though we were lucky to reach the semifinals and we were thinking that we would win against France for the bronze medal. If you tell people that France won the bronze medal and defeated India they won't believe.

"They have never heard that France have such a good team. The second time they defeated us shows that France are far better than India."
"In India a lot of hockey is being played but even then France defeated us. It shows that we were lacking somewhere. There were weaknesses in defence, coordination, conversion, field goal and also conversion through penalty corner. Naturally if you don’t have these 3-4 things you’ll be the loser. In the last World Cup (2016) we had a very nice team and they won it."

Currently, the senior team is competing at the Asian Champions Trophy in Dhaka. India, who are the joint defending champions, are sitting at the top of the table with seven points from three matches.

"Senior team is doing well. We drew the first match (against Korea) but we won the second (vs Bangladesh) and third match (vs Pakistan). I’m sure we’ll be good enough to win the tournament."

National Sports Assembly discusses proposals to revolutionise sports

Speaking at the assembly, hockey Olympian Ashok Dhyan Chand gave a call for developing sports culture in the country.

"We cannot even think of either the welfare of sports or of the sportspersons. So far we have not been able to register huge success at the Olympic stage as we have been lagging behind in the medal tally despite a promising potential in several Olympic-related games. We have a huge population and if sincere efforts are being made, then we deserve better than whatever we have been able to achieve," he said.

The assembly after due deliberations and discussion agreed that a formal request be made to government agencies to develop at least one Model Sports Village in each state and this centre should work as a magnet and around it all sorts of sports-related developments be initiated in adjoining districts and villages.

Another proposal was that the government should get the sports ground made free from the clutches of land mafias so that kids can play there.

"Time is ripe and it is the right time when sports infrastructure will be improved in the country if the government really wishes to see growth in soft power in terms of our sportspersons playing some active role in civil society," said former India hockey player Zafar Iqbal.

Meanwhile, Dr. Kanishka Pandey, Head Sports Research Centre, IMT Ghaziabad, said that the sports assembly was on the lines of Indian Parliamentary sessions, where every member discusses various government proposals.

"All the members of the 1st National Sports Assembly, today discussed each of the proposals mooted after a research, and their suggestions were incorporated and all the proposals passed here will be documented and will be forwarded to the central and state governments, the key stakeholders assigned to frame sports policies," said Pandey in a release.

"We look forward to the suggestions of this assembly finding due considerations at the policy framers level," he added.

The assembly also mentioned that the school admission criteria should also include consideration of sports knowledge, as only then the parent will change their perception about sports.

Another important proposal that found majority support was there should be a mandatory provision to include at least one sports advisor to each parliamentarian and legislator as they will help in that department to include sports activity under their area of operation.

The IMT National Sports Assembly will be organised thrice a year.

Rachna Govil, Md Jotuluddin Rizvi, Gopal Saini, Suresh Mishra, Arvind Chhavara, Mohavir Singh, Rajkumar Bainsala, Vineet Kumar, Danish Mujtaba, Shiv Singh, Sandeep Gupta, Naveen Kumar Poonia, Preetam Thakral, Sandeep Singh Man, Surendra Khanna, Akram Shah, Nicky Balaji, Ashok Dhawan, and Akshay Chaudhary were also present in the assembly.

National Sports Assembly discusses proposals to revolutionise sports

New Delhi, Dec 18 (IANS) A host of sports personalities, who have represented India in various sports at different levels, participated in India's first National Sports Assembly here on Saturday to discuss several proposals that would revolutionize the sports in the country.
National Sports Assembly calls for revolutionary change

New Delhi. A large number of Indian sportspersons, representing almost all Olympic disciplines, discussed several proposals to revolutionize sports and the way it is looked at today. Ashok Dhyan Chand called for developing a proper sports culture in the country. “We cannot even think of either the welfare of sports or of the sportspersons”. “So far we have not been able to register big success at the Olympic stage. If sincere efforts are made, we can achieve much more,” he said at the gathering of the first National Sports Assembly here on Saturday.

Another hockey Olympian, Zafar Iqbal, said: “Time is ripe. It is the right time when sports infrastructure should be improved in the country if the government really wishes to see growth in soft power in terms of our sportspersons playing some active role in civil society.” TNN

NEW DELHI: Mandatory questions on sports in school admission forms, saving playgrounds from encroachment, attaching a sports expert to MLAs and MPs, and creation of a model village were some of the prominent proposals passed unanimously by a host of India’s past and present athletes at the inaugural National Sports Assembly here on Saturday.

Organised by Institute of Management Technology (IMT), Ghaziabad, in association with the NGO Sports: A Way of Life, the assembly elected hockey Olympians Ashok Kumar and Zafar Iqbal as its first head and deputy. The deliberations also involved past masters such as Surinder Khanna (cricket), Pratim Ranil Swach (hockey), Gopal Saini (athletics) as well as active athletes such as Danish Mujtaba (hockey), Naveen Kumar (handball), and Akshay Chaudhary (handball).

The recommendations aimed to foster a sports culture, were floated by Kanishka Pandey, who heads the sports research centre at IMT besides being the founder-president of Sports: A Way of Life. “India did very well at the Tokyo Olympics but we can’t be satisfied just yet. We need to reach out to parents to sensitise them about the benefits of sports. A lot of parents still don’t see much use in letting their children play without realising that sports not only prepares children physically, but also imparts them the essential mental strength to take failures and rejections in their stride,” said Pandey while seeking compulsorily inclusion of questions on sport in the nursery admission process. “It is imperative to take sports to each household. There is a need to include basic questions on sports, such as ‘Which sport is your child interested in?’ in nursery forms just to start conversations around sports at homes,” said Pandey.

Rachana Govil, former director of SAI Lucknow, seconded the move and called for wider pedagogical reforms. “I feel our pre-school or elementary books should include sports in some way or the other,” said Govil. One of the ways to do that would be identifying 10-12 letters through sport-related terminology while teaching the alphabet, she said. That will help “children getting attuned to sports at a sub-conscious level.”

“Also, students who excel at sports meets in schools should be awarded extra marks to boost his/her morale. That will also set an example for other kids to follow,” said Govil.

Saini, former national record holder in 3000m steeplechase, suggested that chapters on the life and struggles of former athletes should be made part of school curriculum.

The proposals will be sent to central and state governments. “I think this assembly is an important first step in creating a sports culture in the country. I am hopeful that our proposals will be received well and acted upon,” said Ashok Kumar, India’s 1975 World Cup hockey player.
